

June 2025-Kris Berg

June has had us jumping puddles and jumping for joy on the sunny days. We may actually be in our summer season weather wise. We are absolutely in the summer season at KinsKlub!

We've been busy getting the garden planted and it's thriving! Should be a good harvest this year for our kinskids and their families. A round of applause for our resident green thumb gardener Margie! She's the backbone of our garden's success every summer. This year she started lots of plants at home that set our kids up to plant their own family container gardens to have at home. Trying to instill the idea that fresh veggies are possible at home with a small container when space is limited or the yard isn't yours to dig up. We know the kinskids love the gardening at Kinship and eating the fresh produce right from the ground. This is a great life skill for them to be learning.

We have once again partnered with the Senior Center and enjoyed creating fun tie dye socks with them. The Senior Center has plans to get together once a month with our kinskids. We suspect the Seniors are having as much fun hanging out together as our kinskids! It's fabulous to watch them spending time together.

We have jumped right into our summer reading program. All kinskids regardless of age are invited to Dive into the Deep End with reading. They set their goals on how quickly they can achieve diving into the pool to swim like a dolphin! Some opted to dive right in as dolphins and will hopefully be jumping in to the pool next week.

Lots of fun is in the works for summer Kinsklub. We are determined to take advantage of all the nice days and be outside as much as possible. What appears to be just playing actually has some sneaky learning happening while fun and games ensue. We look forward to visitors and have some special guests scheduled for the weeks to come. Stop in and peek into all the fun happening!
